

Baman Ghimire

The workshops organized in Dhangadhi and Butwal, Nepal focused on providing comprehensive information and resources about studying abroad, with sessions on various topics like exploring best-fit colleges, effective application strategies, and preparation for standardized tests. Participants, including students and educators, received valuable insights from facilitators and speakers with diverse backgrounds, including successful professionals and students from US universities, on topics such as the CommonApp, Letters of Recommendation, and navigating cultural transitions. The outcomes highlighted an increased interest and awareness among participants about financial support for overseas opportunities, the importance of holistic preparation, and the benefits of leveraging local and international resources, leading to long-term benefits for students and schools in terms of better preparation and informed decision-making.
